Do-it-yourself classes ready next semester

By FAM ELROD
Universe Staff Writer

A student initiated proposal on creating their own classes has been approved for winter semester by the University Curriculum Council, ASBYU officials announced Tuesday.

The new course, University Studies, will be available to any group of students who have an intense desire or curiosity to study in a particular area to organize themselves into a class.

Parking free downtown

Parking meters in Provo will stand idle, effective today, throughout the Christmas season. City-wide two-hour free parking is permitted.

A pre-Christmas gift to the community, the City Commission announced all city parking will be limited to two hours, and parking meter charges will be waived until the end of December.

Officers will make two-hour patrols of parking areas between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. The familiar "gifts" on the dashboard will still be forthcoming for those whose shopping keeps them more than two hours.

Commissioner Russell Grange said the city should make it easier for holiday shoppers to find spaces during the Christmas rush.

according to Monte Stewart, of the Academic Innovations Committee.

A bibliography of the books and articles they plan to read in this area must be compiled and taken to an advisor in that field. The students must find a professor in their field that will agree to be a consultant-advisor for their group before they can register in January, Stewart explained.

Spencer Conde, chairman of the Department of University Studies, explained "The number was given the tag of a Universities Studies course, but it is not taught in our department. Each group and course is handled individually in and by each respective department. We just made it possible to just make one course listing instead of having every department on campus list 300+ in their course offerings."

The idea for the course came from an experimental group that studied author C. S. Lewis in the spring of 1972. The idea is still basically the same.

The students, in consultation with a faculty sponsor from the department where the work will be most heavily concentrated, will determine the number of papers they will write. They will establish clear criterion for determining grades and choose their own meeting place and times. Group sizes will range from four to 10 students. They will also grade each other.

Stewart and Scott Jenkins, also on the AIC, researched the proposal and allowed it through to its completion.

Sierra Club says

River damage sure

By BARBARA EVANS
Universe Staff Writer

Charges that the proposed new road through Provo Canyon will destroy the river, eliminate parks, upset natural springs and cause a geological disturbance "of major magnitude" were voiced recently at a public meeting of the Sierra Club.

Lillian Hayes, president of the local group, said the current plan for the road has it crossing a major landslide area. Drilling investigations by the Highway Department have confirmed the presence of fault zones in the Wicks landslide area, which might cause any road built in the zone to slip and require a great deal of maintenance, she added.

The landslide acts as a sponge in collecting water from springs that serve Provo's water supply. Increased pressure from a road built on the slide could alter the flow of water and divert it into a fault zone where it would be lost to the city, said Mrs. Hayes.

Complaints were voiced that no other alternatives than a new four-lane road through the canyon were being discussed. Mrs. Hayes quoted a member of the Highway Department as having told her, "We've spent too much money on this design, and if you don't like it, we'll take our money elsewhere."

"There are so many alternatives, but I keep getting the feeling that the guys planning the road are lazy," agreed Lowell Christensen, a member of the advisory committee preparing a master plan for the canyon. "We estimate that there are at least 17 places where passing lanes could be constructed along the present route and at least six places where four lanes could be put through."

Paul Thorne, Utah County Commissioner of Roads, said, "The Highway Department has made mistakes, but they're honest mistakes. I don't think they're trying to bulldoze this through. If there are enough people that want it stopped, it will be stopped."

V. Cong ordered to fight

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong main force and guerrilla units are ordered to continue fighting if the United States signs a separate cease-fire agreement with Hanoi and the Saigon government refuses to go along, captured documents show.

Listen regularly to both friendly and enemy broadcasts," the documents advise the Viet Cong. "If the Americans announce cease-fire and the puppet government does not, only forces are to continue fighting."

The documents, picked up in the past two weeks, were issued on Oct. 31, the date Hanoi still insists President Nixon had finally agreed to for the signing of a cease-fire agreement. They consist of orders and notebooks kept by political cadre training indoctrination lessons for a cease-fire in the Saigon area.

Other documents picked up in the same period indicate the communists are planning a noisy, violence-strewn reception for a cease-fire in Saigon, Da Nang and some of the other big urban areas, where they never have had firm control.

Stir up violence among high school and university students," the cadre in Saigon are advised. "Form movements to protect draft dodgers and disobey laws. Seize control of the central areas, especially the laborers' quarters."

Sapper units moving into Da Nang are ordered to "concentrate on eliminating tyrants and ringleaders... therefore the clandestine transportation of big weapons is not necessary."

The idea is to get the people to provoke a violent reaction on the part of the government.

"We must incite the people to light firecrackers, organize uniform festival dances and parades, hang and light lanterns... We must motivate the vendors in the market not to sell, students not to listen to their teachers and workers not to work."

In both Saigon and Da Nang, as well as in heavily populated Binh Dinh Province, party faithful are ordered to provide the people with "flags, megaphones, posters and banners" to trumpet cease-fire as a great Communist victory. Suggested slogan: "Down with Nguyen Van Thieu, form the government of national concord."

Political cadres are warned that "the confusing time will be very short," so they must get to work immediately in such projects as "pressuring Buddhist leaders to pray for peace and organize peace marches through the streets" and encouraging "servicemen's dependents to call back their husbands."

Professor of the Month

Prof. Ott gets award

Acclaimed throughout the university community as an outstanding teacher and scholar, Dr. J. Bevan Ott was awarded the honor of "Professor of the Month" at yesterday's devotional assembly.

A specialist in thermodynamics, Dr. Ott has penned over 20 scholarly publications including the textbook, "Chemical Thermodynamics: An Introduction." A second textbook is forthcoming before the year's end.

Chemistry Dept. professor, Dr. Ott has earned recognition by students for his ability to present difficult material in an easy-to-assimilate fashion. Extensive knowledge of subject matter, enthusiasm and preparation are factors cited by students nominating the professor, as keys to his well-organized lecture technique. Blue Key Honor Fraternity and the Academics Office sponsored the doctor in receiving the award. Scholarship in his field of study, was another factor considered in his selection.

While at BYU Dr. Ott has received a Karl G. Maeser research award and an "Outstanding Alumnus" award from Dixie College. He obtained his B.S. and M.S. degrees from BYU in 1955 and 1957. Doctoral work was completed at the University of California at Berkeley. While there, he did research on low temperature calorimetry under Nobel Prize Laureate W. F. Giauque.

Dr. Ott now serves as first counselor in the BYU Fourth Stake Presidency.

Greek drama plays tonight

"The Trojan Women," a classical Greek drama, will be enacted tonight only on the College Hall Auditorium stage, 500 N. University Ave.

The Euripides drama, directed by drama graduate student Robert B. Alto began following the fall of Troy and the massacre of all the male inhabitants. The role of Hecuba, Queen of Troy, will be performed by Sylvia Spicer, with Klen Crockett taking the part of Cassandra. Tallyhubb will be played by Larry Jentzsch. Curtain will rise over the city of Troy at 7 p.m. Tickets for the classical will be sold at the door for 25 cents.

Students interested in planning and executing programs of the ASBYU Office of Women's Activities are encouraged to sign up for committee work in 432 ELWC.

Besides planning and executing activities for BYU coeds, the ASBYU Women's Office Vice-president serves as a contributing and voting member of the Executive Council of student government.

Blood drive continues, ends Thurs.

More than 290 pints of blood were donated in the campus Red Cross Blood Drive Monday and Tuesday, officials reported.

The goal of 600 pints will probably be reached, reported Capt. Larry Atkinson, Air Force ROTC. "We really want to urge those who have made appointments to keep them and those who are still considering donating to do it."

THE DRIVE continues from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Thursday in the ELWC Games Center on campus. AFROTC officials suggest any student wishing to donate to Utah Valley hospital and make an appointment this week. The hospital has been asked to contribute blood for 11 cases of open heart surgery in Salt Lake City this week.

Bus transportation is available for those donating at Utah Valley Hospital.

Commandant talks tomorrow at dinner

NEWS BUREAU — Major General George G. Loving Jr., commandant of Air Command and Staff College at Maxwell University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama, will be the featured speaker at the third annual "Dining-In" at BYU tomorrow.

Sponsored by the Air Force ROTC unit on campus, the formal dinner will have in attendance more than 400 men cadets and members of the women's support group, Angel Flight.

PREVIOUS speakers at the Pearl Harbor Day dinner have been Major General William Chiswell and Brigadier General Robert Spencer. The "Dining-In" is a formal dinner held worldwide in Air Force units to establish friendship and mutual commitment among members of the unit.

General Loving, a native of Roanoke, Va., attended Lynchburg College before entering the Army Air Force as an aviator cadet in 1942. As a pilot during World War II, he flew 151 combat missions with the 51st Fighter Group, flying Spitfires and P-51 aircraft, fighting battles over Italy, Southern France, Germany, Czechoslovakia, and other occupied countries of Eastern Europe. He downed five enemy aircraft and damaged two.

Seats are still available for Friday's Lettermen Concert. Anthony Antonelli, ASBYU social vice president, said Tuesday.

Tickets will remain on sale through Friday in 329 ELWC. Prices are $2.50 and $3.50 for the Dec. 8 concert. Antonelli indicated the Lettermen will perform several of their hit numbers along with seasonal selections. Concert time is 8 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

Council meets today

Four budget proposals will be discussed and presented for voting today at the Executive Council meeting of the ASBYU Executive Council in 378 ELWC.

A proposal to allocate ASBYU funds to the Mormon Drama Festival will be the first item on the agenda. Bill Fillmore, ASBYU president, will present the suggestion to allocate funds to pay for a prize for the winning play in the festival.

Dean Lael Woodbury, associate dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communications, will be present to answer any questions concerning the proposal.

"Actually, I have been asked to attend to give some counsel in an advisory capacity," said Woodbury.

A PROPOSAL to provide an ASBYU mail calendar will be offered by Jeff Boswell, ASBYU executive vice president. The board would list all of the events in a given semester and would be placed in the main foyer of the ASBYU office near the receptionist's desk.

Boswell will also present a funds request for the proposed remodeling of five ASBYU offices. The offices are now housed in a large area as a conglomerate group. The request includes the partitioning of the area to provide privacy for the varied offices.

Allocation of funds for the semester book resale will also come before the council.

Discussion on the suggested date for ASBYU elections will be concluded. The date, March 2 to March 23, was presented and tabled at last week's executive gathering.

Revisions on constitutional bylaws will also be discussed.

'Uncle Vanya' showing cul

The Dec. 12 matinee of "Uncle Vanya" has been cancelled. Persons holding tickets for that performance are invited to exchange them for one of the remaining evening performances or for a refund at the Drama Ticket Office, HFAC.

Running through Dec. 16 in the Pardo Drama Theatre, Anton Chlovsky's "Uncle Vanya" is a tragic-comedy in four acts.

Apollo ready for launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—Apollo 17, perhaps man's last visit to the moon for decades, is ready to blast off tonight on America's most spectacular manned space launching.

The smoothest countdown in Apollo history ticked flawlessly toward a 7:53 MST liftoff in the first afterdawn launching of a U.S. manned flight, a fiery event expected to draw half a million visitors to the Cape Kennedy area.

Secret meeting cancelled

PARIS—A scheduled secret meeting between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam was mysteriously canceled yesterday.

The U.S. and North Vietnamese delegations announced that the peace negotiations will hold private talks today.

No reason was given by either side for the cancellation of the meeting.

KANSAS CITY—Former President Harry S. Truman was admitted to Research Medical Center Tuesday afternoon with what was described as pulmonary congestion.

His condition was reported as fair by a hospital spokesman.

Nixon names Lynn to HUD

WASHINGTON—Nixon yesterday named Undersecretary of Commerce James T. Lynn to be secretary of Housing and Urban Development and announced that Rogers Morton would remain as Interior Secretary in his second-term Cabinet.

As Nixon continued his Cabinet shuffle, it was learned that Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson will leave his current post next month to head a new government council in charge of all U.S. international economic policy.

Court rules against sex display

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court ruled 6-3 Tuesday that the states may shut down saloons that feature bottomless dancers, sex films or other forms of "bachchanal revelries."

City sponsors holiday contest

Ever since the first Christmas tree was cut in the Eighth Century, decorations have been an important part of the holiday season.

Provo's Jaycees are entering into that spirit of Christmas by sponsoring an annual Christmas home lighting contest. Every person who lives in a house can enter, and trophies will be awarded to first, second and third place entries by a panel of local judges.

Many homes will also be awarded honorable mentions, according to project chairman Blaine Walker.

Entries must send their names, telephone numbers and addresses to P.O. Box 8, Provo, by Dec. 18, to be eligible for prizes.

The purpose of the contest, according to Walker, is to "benefit the community by creating a festive atmosphere." He added that the contest has been successful in the past because citizens who catch the spirit of "he season want to put it on to their friends and neighbors.

IMPROVEMENTS PETITIONED

Provo residents submitted petitions to the City Engineering Dept. for $250,000 worth of improvements this year, according to Jack Ziebes, Provo city engineer.

City to buy rural land for park site

PROVO CITY is currently in the process of purchasing 15 acres of farmland in the southwest part of town for future park development.

According to Floyd Giles of the Provo Parks and Recreation Department, "We are looking to the future on this property. We attempt to buy good potential park locations while they are still rural and less expensive."

THE LAND The Parks Department is interested in is part of a 33-acre tract in the vicinity of 1100 West and 1150 South.

While the Provo City is interested in 15 acres of the plot, the Provo School District has already purchased the balance of the acreage for a future elementary school site.

"We are trying to coordinate with the School District in developing parts adjacent to school grounds," said Giles.

ALTHOUGH development would wait until the area is more residential, the Parks Department already has ideas on the type of park that might eventually occupy the pastureland.

"The area has several springs and ponds and we would take advantage of these natural features," Giles indicated that nature trails would likely be included in the proposed park.

"Actual development of the park is still five years in the future," stated Giles.

Legends of Christmas

Holly holy?

Yes, says tradition.

Folklore says that once Jesus was hiding from His enemies, holly bushes kept Him concealed. As a reward, Christ decreed that its leaves would be green all year long.

Another legend adds that the crown of thorns which Christ wore in His last hours was fashioned from holly's prickly leaves. When the Savior bled, the story goes, the white holly berries were stained the deep red they are today.

HOLLY IS the unofficial Christmas plant for other reasons, however. Superstition states that the evergreen leaves of the holly bush are better for warding off witches.

And better than being a protection against evil, holly is said to give supernatural powers to anyone who wears it at Christmastime.

IN FACT, the holiday plant seems to be lucky for everyone but the nurseries that grow it. Even though there are over 300 hardy holly species, commercial growers often lose money for their efforts.

The evergreen comes in the traditional sexes, and only female bushes produce berries. Unfortunately, the plants must be carefully nurtured for eight years before nurserymen can tell if they are female. After all the work, the other half of the holly bushes must be thrown away.

Sewers safer

Potential flooding due to back-up in undersized sewer lines in Provo has been averted with the Dec. 1 completion of a sewer project contracted last summer, according to Jack Ziebes, Provo city engineer.

The $200,000 project extended from 300 West and 600 South to 2600 North, covering 32 city blocks. The lines tie into the existing manholes in the Country Club area.

Oaks goes East for legal, fund projects

Fres Dallin H. Oaks departs on a four-day trip to New York City and Washington, D.C. In New York he will meet with potential University donors and talk to LDS groups.

Saturday in Washington he will attend a meeting to survey legal projects. Oaks is a member of a special committee of the American Bar Association formed for that purpose.

Meetings with potential University donors have been arranged on Thursday and Friday. Charles Graves and Ken Porter, among others, will be present. Oaks will meet and talk with those who wish to donate to BYU. These potential donors may donate to any part of BYU, according to Bruce Bingham, BYU Alumni Director.

On Thursday a group called Chanvar will hold a luncheon with Pres. Oaks. This group consists of older businessmen in the New York City area who are originally

Choir sings holiday program

Christmas music will further the holiday spirit as BYU's 66-voice Cappella Choir presents its annual Christmas Concert Dec. 8 and 9 at 8 p.m. in the De Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

Under the direction of Dr. Ralph Woodward, the choir will be joined by the 58-voice Children's Choir to present a program which will include a full range of Christmas carols, spirituals and Renaissance pieces. The Children's Choir, composed of children aged 9 to 13 from all over Utah Valley under the direction of Margaret Woodward, will present an original carol, "We Men Search for Their New King," written at age 13 by Ward Manookin, son of Robert Manookin of the music faculty.

A prelude of carols by two sopranos and the "Golden Age Singers," a madrigal group made up of 13 members of the large choir, will also be featured.

Trees to benefit kids

More than 100 Christmas trees decorated by individuals, private clubs, organizations and local merchants will be sold during the Festival of Trees, Dec. 7th, 8th and 9th.

The annual fund raising event is to benefit Primary Children's Hospital. Gifts from all over the world and as far as Japan, will be sold in addition to the decorative trees.

"Festival of Trees" is widely known throughout Utah. Utah Valley is one of its leading contributors. Provo citizens raised $12,000 last year for their contributions of trees and gifts.

Funds raised will be used to develop heart surgery and psychiatric units and many more much needed facilities. Lehi, American Fork, etc., Springville, Spanish Fork and Payson will also donate to the tree-day event.

Gifts made in various BYU branches will also be sold at the festival. A family focused event will take place at the Utah Guard Armory, 43 Sunnyside Ave. in Salt Lake City.

Trees will be on display, a gift shop, sweet shop and roving fish pond. Doors will remain opened from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased at First Security Bank's North and Main branches. Price is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The culture committee of the SBYU Office of Women's Activities is involved in planning and executing workshops and gift days, in addition to the office's annual bake off, Bridal Fair and Women's Week projects.

from the West and are LDS. One of these businessmen is Robert Sears, Vice President of Phillips Petroleum Company.

That night President Oaks will attend the BYU vs. Michigan basketball game in the Nassau Coliseum, in Uniondale, New York.

Friday a luncheon meeting will be held with President Oaks and the Omniclub. This club is made up of young LDS businessmen in the New York City area.

Weihnachts Program heute abend

Alle deutschen Studenten, Deutschsprachigen Studenten, zurückgekehrte Missionare und andere, die Gefühle für die deutsche Sprache im Herzen tragen, sind zu unserer Weihnachtsfeier am 6. Dezember um 19.

Wir herzlichst eingeladen. Ein Weihnachtsspiel in Sechs Bildern von G. Baerg wird aufgeführt, der deutsche Chor wird singen, und alle Anwesenden können ihre geliebten Weihnachtslieder mitsingen.

Viele Weihnachtsbräuche der deutschsprachigen Länder werden gezeigt, an denen alle auch teilnehmen können. Nach dem Spiel gibt es echtes deutsches Weihnachtsgebäck zu essen. Eintritt ist frei für diejenigen, die keine deutsche Studentenkreisarte haben.

Poetry sought for Christmas issue

Don't blame thermometer for the fever contracted

Who said it? That is really the question.

Take any line from a Shakespeare play and somebody's bound to say "that's what Shakespeare said about that."

But the playwright didn't say that—one of his dramatic characters did. Far from being a piece of the bard's wisdom, it most likely is a sentiment he put in the mouth of a character he liked or disliked.

It is extremely difficult to know what Shakespeare himself thought about any fundamental question. His genius lay in his ability to place himself into 1,000 minds and hearts, to take one position after another and make it sound plausible and sincere.

This is why, for centuries, Shakespearean students have quarreled about the "real" Shakespeare—some claiming him as an aristocrat, others as a Democrat, some as a religious man and others as an atheist. There is no resolving these disputes even his privately printed sonnets do not reveal the full man to us.

The way an author feels about our attributing sentiments to him that are expressed in his fiction was brought out by W. S. Gilbert in a trial for libel just before the turn of the century. He was on the witness stand as the plaintiff, and the defense lawyer quoted a statement from one of Gilbert's plays, trying to show that Gilbert actually believed the opposite of what he was saying on the stand.

"Those were the words," Gilbert retorted, "of a character in my play. They were not my words. I wrote them, but I do not hold myself responsible for anything a fictional character happens to say."

THE READING PUBLIC should be aware of this at all times, right down to reading the Daily Universe. It has been suggested by some that if we run a wire story from New York City where the judge has ruled that nothing is pornographic, we are agreeing as a paper, in a sense, because we have run the article.

However, as in the case of the author and his plays, many ideas are usually presented by a paper in its pages or by a single writer in a piece to illuminate a subject from many sides rather than taking a stand. Unless an article is signed by a particular person and is an opinion, it may not be at all representative of his views.

Unless an editorial appears in this column using the third person "we feel," etc., it is not the opinion of the Daily Universe as a whole. And it may never be assumed that because the Universe says so, BYU says so, and conversely, the LDS Church says so.

This is ignoring the fact that in no case are officials of the University or the Council of the Twelve read every piece of copy before it appears each morning. Accounting for human error and the great diversity of thought on any given subject, accept nothing as the last word—only additional input for your decision on what should be the last word.

A special request

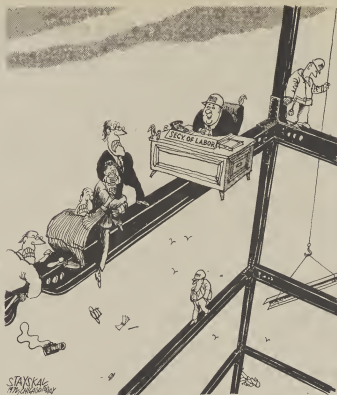

"A lot of pertinent subjects such as women in professional roles and women's lib should be explained to BYU females," according to Kathy Christensen, ASBYU vice-president of Women's Activities, and we agree wholeheartedly.

Yet to date, BYU women have been exposed, courtesy of the Women's Office, to candle making, powerpuff car mechanics, singing birthday cards, decoupage, macrame, pumpkin carving, quilting, babysitting, bridal fairs, a bake-off and a "Two on a Shoestring" week. Publicity for a Women's Office showing of "Tales of Terror" instructed femme fatales to "hold on for dear life, and scream a little," so their boyfriend would "dig it." A car mechanics course promised to teach talents that would "drive your man wild."

While there is a time and place for lighter activities, the age of the fascinating woman who clings to "her man" in horror movies is long gone. There is a serious neglect on campus of the woman who seeks a little academic orientation from her representative in student government. What of the woman in literature and the arts, the woman in politics, the woman in community affairs, the woman in a career field, the woman in education, not to mention the woman in the university community?

While there is certainly a need to satisfy the homemaking drives of the average coed, perhaps that need can be met within the comprehensive programs of the Relief Society without duplication in the ASBYU offices.

We are pleased to note that the upcoming Women's Week plans emphasis on culture, service and wisdom. We hope that this will set a precedent for next semester's activities.

"I CALLED THIS PRESS CONFERENCE TO SAY MY OFFICE WILL BE OPEN TO EVERYONE..."

Honor yourself...

In honoring BYU Code

Many students and faculty members have commented over the past few weeks on the increasing number of Honor Code violations, specifically in the area of BYU dress and grooming standards. In attempting to isolate the reasons for short skirts, blue jeans, and long hair, we recognize a variety of rationales ranging from trends in fashion to peer approval to empty wallets.

We also recognize that there are problems of definition and inconsistencies in the enforcement. Furthermore, we readily acknowledge the fact that a short skirt, long hair, or grubby attire doesn't necessarily mean that a person is evil, just as many outward signs of virtue do not make one good within (or in someone else's words: "Just going to church every Sunday doesn't make you any more a Christian than spending the night in the garage makes you a Chevrolet").

Yet, although the length of one's hair, per se, is not a moral issue in and of itself, it can become such under those unique circumstances where one has made a promise to abide certain standards, for then it becomes a matter of personal integrity. To those among our fellow students who are not in harmony with Dress Standards, we offer the following reasons for your compliance and understanding:

1. Sustain the General Authorities, who have initiated and repeatedly urged our adherence to these standards.
2. Keep your personal integrity uncompromised. Upon entering BYU we all made a personal commitment to honor the dress standards of the University. Not abiding those standards represents an obvious breach of promise.
3. Cultivate a personal independence above the trends of the world, avoiding conformity for its own sake. We have been taught that we are the modern day children of Israel—the Lord's own people. Don't allow yourself to develop that kind of mental lock-step response or psychological dependency upon the ever-changing fads of the world, which seeks to dictate our dress and grooming patterns solely for its own profit.
4. Follow the advice of Paul (1 Corinthians 8) and avoid becoming a stumbling block to you weaker brethren, either by offending them or causing them to sin unnecessarily in their feelings toward you, or by weakening them in their resolve to honor their own commitment.

5. Recognize what you represent. By virtue of the unique nature of this university, we too become symbols, in that we represent the Lord's Church. Seen in this light, we have great responsibility to represent it properly, exemplifying the Christian virtues of modesty, neatness, and cleanliness, and staying within the standard rather than riding the borderline, while avoiding those styles which are inevitably associated with ideas and practices antithetical to the Gospel.

Although "The Great Dress Standards Debate" consumes far more time and energy than it deserves, we believe that there are certain underlying implications in a student's decision "to obey or not to obey" that extend the issue far beyond the cut of one's hair or the length of one's skirt.

Our decision is a reflection of our sense of honor, our loyalty, and our awareness of our position in the world around us. The foundation of Zion was never laid by those fond of wanting in the integrity or their understanding of who they really are.

We support and salute those members of our faculty who take their challenge from President Oaks seriously, and we encourage our fellow students to be true to our mutual commitment.

AMEN

We distinctly heard twenty thousand people expressing a sincere "amen" to the prayer for good sportsmanship at last Saturday's basketball game. What allowed, needless to say, challenges us to believe that we were within the midst of a Christian University.

Go to the most times high school game, and you won't see the crowd. It's boring and boring while the game is in progress. It's a foul shot, let alone a college campus where the players are supposedly better. Of course we don't blame, we are following the example of our father. We're the greatest sports as long as the balance is in our favor.

At a next level, though, the music played is bound to gain. From the Saturday night, we could hear one quote a band of shouting brass and tuba. One Omen and five others.

HIGH SCHOOL

I have been a BYU supporter for years. I have been a BYU supporter for years to come. I am also an alumni of BYU but I was ashamed to say that at the Santa Clara game or the actions of many people. The thing was that it seemed to enter in the student scene. Maybe I was wrong. Maybe someone told me the same way so it wasn't just my opinion.

In all the years of attending basketball games at the University, I have heard the student body cheer their own team. When two cheap baskets were made by Santa Clara because of missed referee assignments of two players who were playing their hardest. I hope by the students was ultimate in our own situation.

This was terrible, but to hear the noise and hollering (by the cheer leaders) while a visiting team was playing foul shots was even more repulsive. For some reason, I don't see that what BYU students should stand for. I'm not blaming the students or all of this, but maybe they should stand for the public.

Perhaps Pres. Wilkinson should be asked to return to give one of his portmanteau talks. At any rate I hope something is done. In a year when the students are to encounter better sportsmanship, why should a university be called a BYU? I hope so that it would be like some of the universities we have heard reports of in the past.

Earl Dayton

VISITOR REMARKS

Last weekend a friend of mine from the University visited our campus. Prior to his visit he'd been interested in transferring to BYU, but after spending only one day here, his interest was killed.

The attempt to enforce conformity and the overabundance of rules concerning life and the things that impressed him most was the conduct of many BYU students at Saturday's basketball game.

Despite a prayer for good sportsmanship, the BYU crowd (and the team) was about as rude as it could get. Thousands of BYU students actually "booed" two players from the floor and the "booing" he referred. We heard of quite a few students booing the players.

The overwhelming crowd displayed that visiting crowd my friend to remark "I know BYU would be different. I know most of the students are Mormons, but how many of them are Christians?" I also wonder.

David L. Hutchinson

ALIVE AND INDEPENDENT

In reply to Gary Steinkamp's letter about the attitudes and appearance of BYU students we would like to know where he kept his statistics. Our statement of its first is quite active in campus activities, and we do go to the game. It is a shock to Gary but some of us do care about our own lives as BYU students. We are doing every Friday night. Granted, we do like to go out, but we don't do it home on our self-righteous, chivalrous and when we aren't dating. I hope boys at BYU would stop their ego trips and shake their redneck attitudes. We could be some girls who had some imagination and independence.

enters

WHEN KILLING IS SICK

... Especially take exception to Mr. Cunningham's statements that those who go to the draft and are found in uniform, are sick. What is necessary is for the Law of Christ to have come out of a man, so that he delinquent in the shedding of blood. This man sick. But the millions of others who have not on the uniforms of their countries, and have even found it necessary to kill, were only obeying the Lord's commandment to obey their governments, which the Church has continually taught (see Faith #12).

REACTION AND WAR

I don't think I'll ever understand how people can compare Helman and the 2,000 Laminas attitudes with Richard Nixon and his many thousands of soldiers.

I am not a total pacifist and would readily protect my loved ones if endangered. However, if people think I would die for a futile war or one attempting to win (with the exception of the North Vietnamese), they are sadly mistaken!

When the Scriptures gathered to fight, did they not fight to win? Can our country be doing the same? I doubt it. I love my country and would die for it if need be, but not for a cause we will soon abandon. Rather than die for such an unworthy, political cause I would probably leave the country.

I would caution some people that the "band of the free and the home of the brave" was not necessarily always been in the right. What did the country do while the Statue was kept in perspective?

DRAFT LETTER

I read, with great interest and sympathy, the letters of Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Wade. I, too, am in vehement opposition to military, but I think a very vital point has been completely side-stopped by both letters, the morality of the draft itself. The draft is nothing more or less than the government claiming the right to dispose of the lives of its citizens in any manner it chooses, without their consent. This, and should be recognized as a blatant violation of the protecting. Those who wish to live their lives in peace.

The choice before those eligible to be drafted is either to surrender your lives as tools of death and corruption, or to remain your Constitutionally guaranteed rights of life and liberty.

I choose the latter of the two.

MURDER

Editor: If you haven't determined it a dead issue, may I lend my support to the Cunningham. Our government does not allow alternate service to the general public as Bill Card suggests a Mormon can't get CO status. In our present role in the world we need provisions, after being the bully on the block for twenty-five years we need help. But let's change. Murder is murder whether from fifty thousand feet in a B-52 or on the street. Fighting for peace makes as much sense as fighting for charity! I commend those who have ensured the real reasons of life and are willing to speak out against militarism.

Oriental peoples are notably gifted at adapting to the strange ways of outsiders. Their long history of suffering invasions and other disruptive moves has given them more than their fair share of outsiders to adapt to.

Thus, we see American miniskirts and hear rock and roll in Asian cities. American baseball is popular in Japan and in Taiwan. They send some scintillating teams to compete in the U.S. and now Taiwan has won the World Cup tournament in the traditionally Western game of golf.

Taiwan suffered some rude jolts after President Nixon's mission to Peking changed the pattern of special relationships in the Far East. The island adapted to this, too, and its people kept their sense of humor. Henry Kissinger is reported to have run into James C. H. Shen, Taiwan's ambassador, at a Washington reception, where a photographer snapped a picture of the two. Kissinger quipped, "Now they won't let you back into Taiwan."

Shen quipped back, "And now they won't let you back into Peking." Today, as many nations are developing closer contacts with mainland China, the adaptable people of Taiwan appear to be going through to Peking's ways. Three leading Taiwan hospitals have been asked to do thorough research into acupuncture.

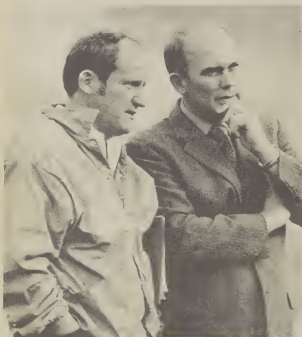

If you can't lick 'em, stick 'em!

Junior Scientist—1972

Dr. Jones receives award

NEWS BUREAU—Dr. Kenneth Jones, assistant professor in communicative habilitation at the University of Utah, has received the Junior Scientist Award for 1972 of the American Speech and Hearing Association.

The award was presented to Dr. Jones at a recent convention of the Association in San Francisco as a scientific research on the development of a clinical test which assesses auditory speech discrimination abilities of deaf children.

To qualify as a "Junior Scientist," a candidate must be five years or less beyond his doctor's degree. The award was designed to recognize those who have potential for scientific contributions.

Dr. Jones attended Southern Utah State College and Columbia University, received a B.A. degree at University of Utah, his M.S. at Utah State University, and a Ph.D. in audiology in 1970 from University of Oklahoma Medical Center.

He joined the BYU faculty in 1971 and teaches courses in audiology, hearing aids, noise pollution, research methods and aural rehabilitation. He is author of the noise ordinance for Provo and other cities in Utah County.

Dr. Jones has served as audiologist with the Veterans Hospital in Oklahoma City, with University of Oklahoma Medical Center, with private physicians and as consultant to the Provo and Jordan School District. He also has taught at Central State College, Okla., and has published extensively in professional journals.

Law foundation journal offers cash for papers

Scholarly papers are being sought by the Foundation for Law Development to be published in a new inter-collegiate and inter-disciplinary journal.

The Journal for Law Development will commence publication on Feb. 9, 1973 and will be published bi-monthly. It includes papers written by faculty members, graduates, undergraduates and other members of academic communities across the nation.

The foundation will award cash prizes ranging from $100 to $500 for winning entries. It costs all entries be 1,500 to 2,000 words in length. The final line for submitting entries for first issue is Dec. 29, 1972.

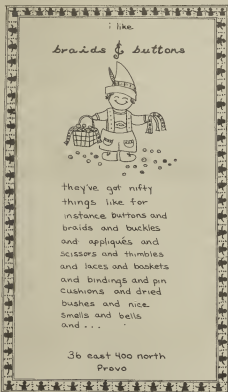

One of 100 categories covering various disciplines has been awarded by the foundation. All essays must have the title of one of these categories or must be in the scope or framework of a category of another title or title is chosen by the author.

Complete list of categories is available from: The New Journal Press, P.O. Box 2973, Reno Beach, Calif. 93903.

Categories will be changed or changed occasionally.

Editors and publishers of new literary and graphic arts also indicated other cash prizes will be offered in the future, as finances permit, for poetry, books, plays, drawings, songs, photographs, etchings, graphic prints, songs and posters, architectural designs, scale designs, furnishings and others.

The early issues of the journal will give further details about the journal awards.

Edwards says possible

Six Cats go pro?

By HOLLY SMITH
Universe Copy Editor

The pro football draft is not till January, but BYU Head Coach LaVell Edwards is predicting now perhaps as many as six Cougars will be grabbed in the professional draw.

Coach Edwards Tuesday listed, Paul Howard, tackle, Dan Hansen, safety, Pete VanValkenburg, John Monahan, kicker and tackle, Logan Hunter, split-end, and Bill August, quarterback, as all possibly going in the draft.

"It's really hard to say right now who will be drafted," said Edwards, "but I feel these men have good chances."

The Cougar head man said he wouldn't want to say who out of the group might be in the highest round but added several of the players might go in the high rounds.

Coach Edwards also said all of the six men had been contacted by professional scouts but quickly added this doesn't mean the six will be drafted.

"We really have no way of knowing exactly," he said. "In the past we've had kids contacted who have never been drafted."

However, Edwards said he felt confident about this group because of its size, strength and speed.

"The pros are looking for good physical dimensions, and these boys have them," he remarked.

Out of the six possibilities, Coach Edwards said VanValkenburg, August and Hunter surprised him most this year in developing into professional prospects.

VanValkenburg ended the season as the nation's leading rusher. Hunter was the Cougar's top pass receiver and August, with help from another quarterback, Dave Terry, guided the club to a 7-4 record.

Edwards said this year's group of pro prospects was probably the largest the school has ever had. Currently, only four Cougars are playing pro ball; Virgil Carter,

Logan Hunter

... draft candidate

Chris Farasopoulos, Gordon Gravelle and Jeff Lyman.

The head coach also projected fewer than usual Western Athletic Conference players would go in the draft this year, but the ones that would be drafted would be picked high. He mentioned Steve Holden of Arizona State and Jackie Wallace of Arizona as sure picks in the first rounds.

Edwards said the six players he mentioned would probably remain in their same positions if drafted.

Rodgers is Heisman pick

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska's sensational all-purpose back, was awarded the Heisman Trophy today as the most outstanding collegiate football player of 1972.

Rodgers received 1,310 points from electors and Oklahoma running back Greg Pruitt was second with 966, followed by Rodgers' Nebraska teammate, middle guard Rich Glover, who gained 652 points.

Rodgers, a 21-year-old English major from Omaha, Neb., overcame sporadic adversity dealing with whether his youthful brushes with the law should affect his consideration as a Heisman Trophy candidate.

The brilliant runner-receiver-kick returner received 301 first place votes to Pruitt's 117. Glover got 99.

The announcement was made by Neill A. McAllister, president of the Downtown Athletic Club of New York which sponsored the 38th annual award.

Louisiana State quarterback Bert Jones finished fourth with 351 points and 61 first-place nominations. Alabama quarterback Terry Davis was next with 338 and 62 firsts and quarterback John Huftagel of Penn State was sixth with 292 points and 62 votes for first.

Earlier, two former Heisman winners agreed the award should be given on the basis of performance on the field with no regard for what a man might do off it.

attendance leader

In Provo, basketball is king

By PAUL DAY

Assistant Sports Editor

College basketball is king in Provo, and Provo is king in college basketball attendance. Because of BYU's brand-new riot Center, which houses 700 plus fans, BYU led the NA in all categories of home basketball attendance for the past season.

Averaging 21,818 fans per test, the Cougars set an all-time NCAA record for home attendance. Even more amazing, basketball fans of the central Utah area totaled 261,815 for the years 12 home games beating over UCLA by over 50,000 fans. Incidentally, the Utdans averaged five more games at home than the Cougars last season.

Average home attendance, the major crowds averaged over 30 more than runner-up Iowa State, who managed 15,554 for 12 home games last season.

The record-setting pace of the Cougar partisans last season probably won't last too long as BYU is expected to break its own national mark in the upcoming season.

The major reason for this prediction is that BYU will play five more home games this year than it did last.

Last week's opening of the Cougar basketball season saw huge, but not record setting crowds.

For Friday night's opener against Santa Clara, the BYU official gate was 20,134. Saturday saw 19,240 fans in the Center for an average of 19,687, a little more than 2,000 under their record pace of last year.

Average attendance is expected to rise, due mainly to the calibre of competition the Cougars play this year.

Besides the perennial sell-out with Utah State, BYU will host Wisconsin, Oklahoma State, Cal State Fullerton and the U.S. Navy (Sub-PAC) during the month of December.

Many reasons are given to support the Cougars' great success at the gate.

A new, ultra-modern arena, knowledgeable fans, a winning program, and exciting fast-break basketball all must be considered in the evaluation of Cougar fortunes.

Another, and equally important aspect, is the player appeal that the Cougars have generated to local fans.

Besides the amusing antics of Kresimir Cosic, local products such as Belmont Anderson, Doug Richards, Greg Clawson, Greg Snow and Dave Bailey, all from Utah, help to draw the local crowd.

Besides BYU, another WAC member made the top ten in average home attendance for the year.

New Mexico, known to be a basketball school, nailed down the number 6 spot with a 13,333 home attendance average for 13 games. The Lobos finished fourth in total attendance with 186,660 fans for the 1971-72 season.

Soccer meet today in SFH

The BYU Soccer Club will hold a meeting for all members today at 4:30 p.m. in 258 SFH, according to Dee Benson, club president.

The annual winter indoor league will be planned at the meeting and a winter weight-lifting program will be explained.

Also on the agenda is planning for competition next semester.

Beehive Relays

Swimmers eye home debut

By DAVE HANNA
Universe Staff Writer

The swimming season opens this week and coach Walt Cryer's team is wasting little time getting into the thick of battle.

The Cougars will open their season with a Friday night dual meet against Utah in Salt Lake Saturday afternoon they will host the annual Beehive Relays. Starting time for the Relays is 2 p.m. in the Richards F.E. Bldg. pools.

Entering his eighth year as head coach, Cryer sees this week's action as a typical showdown between his team and Utah's Redskins.

"It's difficult to assess the two teams since neither of us have had a meet yet," said Cryer. "However, I'm sure the Utes will have one of their typically strong teams. They should be a challenger for this year's conference crown."

Cryer mentioned the Utes will be strong in the backstroke, butterfly and breaststroke events, as well as in the relay events. The Cougars' strength lies in the distance races and in diving, he said.

Utah took two of the three duals last year, so the Cougars will be trying to even the score this time around. Team captain Mike Baxter will lead a strong group of distance freestylers in this week's action. Doug Resborough and freshmen Terry Martin and Rick Ramson will help Baxter.

Freshman Jim Tingey is the main BYU hope in the event. Breaststroker Glen Smith overtook a knee operation Monday, and Cryer is concerned about replacing the senior specialist.

BYU's Stan Curnow is one big reason Cougar swimming and diving enthusiasts are smiling as the Cats begin the water season.

Last year Stan finished 11th in the nationals in three-meter diving. BYU swimming starts Friday against the University of Utah in Salt Lake and Saturday in Provo for the annual Beehive Relays.

Diver Stan Curnow is one reason the Cougars are expecting to monopolize the one- and three-meter boards. Curnow was 11th in the NCAA last year in the three-meter.

Cryer indicated all WAC teams as well as squads from the intermountain area had been invited to participate in this year's Beehive Relays. Utah, BYU and Weber State finished 1-2-3 in last year's meet. Nine relays and one diving event are on tap for Saturday's action.

The Beehive meet will give the Cougars a chance to use several new faces in competition.

STUDENT INJURED IN SEH TRACK MISHAP

It hasn't happened—YET! But sometimes one misstep can result in an occurrence has been avoided.

Each afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. the Cougar tracksters work out on the Smith Fieldhouse track. Each afternoon the gates and other entrances are locked. And each afternoon, a large number of people ignore the locked gates, the piers to stay out of the area and move into the paths of hard-charging thundrals.

Coach Clarence Robison commented on the situation.

"We've been very fortunate in that we haven't had anyone seriously hurt. Each year we have the same difficulty in convincing people that we're closing the track for their own safety."

Those individuals who have classes in the west weightroom and on the main basketball floor are asked to "go up and over" to get to their areas. Persons having handball classes should stay to the outside of the track and be watchful, especially near the turns. Those who use the Fieldhouse for a shortcut to parking lots shouldn't do so because they will meet with resistance from the gatekeepers.

Track, unlike so many of the other sports, is a year-round activity. Members of the team ask the cooperation of every student in keeping their workout area, the SEH track, free from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. each day.

Jones traded

SALT LAKE CITY (AP). The Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association announced Tuesday they traded backcourier Larry Jones to the Dallas Chaparrals for guard Bobby Warren.

The announcement was made at a press conference by Stars General Manager Arnie Ferrin. Warren, a high draft choice of the old Los Angeles Stars, will return to the club from which he began his pro career.

Jones is the all-time leading career scorer in the ABA. He joined the Stars after the Floridians disbanded.

TODAY — 8:00-11:00 A.M.

LIVE COVERAGE of the last of three sessions of U.S. Senate hearings on congressional reform.

Witnesses will give recommendations on ways congress can strengthen itself in the tug-of-war between the executive and legislative branches of national government.

Specific areas of reform to be considered include executive privilege, financial disclosure by senators, congressional seniority, and campaign spending limits.

Among those invited to testify in the hearings are Sen. Barry Goldwater, Clark MacGregor, Thomas Kuchel, Lawrence O'Brien, Ralph Nader, Lucy Benson, Thomas Eagleton, and Robert Taft, Jr.

Volunteers collect food for 'Project Navajo'

Donations of canned goods and food are now being accepted at the around campus as part of the "Project Navajo". According to Capt. Larry Atkinson, advisor of Arnold Air Society, more than 30,000 lbs of food and clothing were collected Provo/Orem area for "Project Navajo" last year.

This year the project is being coordinated and is sponsored by the Air Force Association with Utah County and BYU. Activity coordinated by the old Air Society and Angel Unit of Air Force ROTC on three collections of food and canned goods will be given to Navajos on the Corners reservations. It will their Christmas gift from the people of Utah County.

LOTHERS ARE NOT being elected this year, due to a late left-over supply. Arnold Society members are visiting elementary and junior high schools in the area and asking for donations. BYU students are asked to donate a can or two, which can be dropped off at one of the booths set up on Campus. Capt. Atkinson suggested that donors also bring along a red good to drop off at the booth. The drive will last through December 12. Such food items such as corn, rice, beans and sugar are being right along with the other needed goods. Capt. Atkinson noted, however, that donated items not be in glass containers, as causes packing problems. Capt. Atkinson: "Impromptu club participation is needed and any club having a strong too large to carry to one of the booths is asked to help. A truck will then be sent to pick up the donation."

FTER THE COLLECTIONS, Arnold Air Society will help sport some of the goods by

THE SENSITIVE MANIPULATOR
William G. Dyer $5.95
Behavior change is the issue. The change agent is the answer. Dyer sets forth a workable process toward stimulating behavior change. He believes manipulation has another meaning outside its negative connotations. When combined with sensitivity and the right intentions, it becomes an ideal means for achieving positive direction. The Sensitive Manipulator is a guide to becoming a change agent. It works.
